

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A camera includes a lens holding member for detachably holding a lens device, an image taking device for taking an image formed by the lens device, a
5 front main body member forming a front portion of the main body of the camera, a rear main body member which forms a rear portion of the main body of the camera and is coupled to the front main body member, and a central 10 main body member on which the lens holding member and the image taking device are mounted and which is coupled to at least one of the front and rear main body members.